WORLD CLASS ARCHITECTURE
CREATED BY BRUNO ERPICUM

This minimal property has been designed by award-winning star architect Bruno Erpicum in 2004 and built for the current selling-owner. So this is a first-hand transmission of a collector architecture house. The concept is one very elongated flat rectangle oriented to the West to front the Mediterranean Sea and the sunset. The space is created by a one-piece floor slab and floating above an identical one-piece roof slab. This rectangle space is closed with a glass-only front to take advantage of the amazing sea views. This provides one floor for main living usage. One lower floor caters for technics and a large garage - which could become an additional apartment or a gymnasium.

This is an outdoor living house to take advantage of the glorious mild Mediterranean climate in Ibiza. The delimitation inside / outside blurs away thanks to extra-large sliding windows.

Elongated fine vertical shapes are distributed over the design, as if they mimic slender cypress trees. Some of these openings are doors, others are windows, passages or simply cuts in the walls to create interesting vistas of the garden greenery.

AMAZING LOCATION

A LARGE PLOT WITH SEA VIEW AND 365 DAYS SUNSETS

The property is oriented to the West fronting the Mediterranean Sea and the sunset. Terrific views on the Bay of Cala Tarida.

Size matters: the house is set on a large land of 9.552m² providing total privacy, with only two neighbours around. None of neighbours has sight on the terraces. This is a serene place of Ibiza, where nature and tranquillity reign. There is no audible street noise nor flight traffic around.

The final beauty of the location is that the sun drops into the sea horizon every day right in front of the property, setting the sky on fire in hues of orange and pink. Considering that Ibiza is famous for its incredible sunsets, this is a natural spectacle not to be missed, having a cocktail on your terrace or in your swimming pool...

The property has its own water well, an important fact for cost effective garden maintenance.
